About Upper Hume Primary Care Partnership

Upper Hume PCP has a considerable reputation for its local, collaborative approach to working with its member agencies, building strong partnerships for effective work in preventative health.

We provide expertise and technical knowledge to support partners to work together with community to deliver integrated, responsive health and social care systems that enhance wellbeing outcomes for our region. We collaborate with Central Hume Primary Care Partnership in work across the Ovens Murray Area while also working directly with local governments, member organisations and small communities in place-based actions.

Current Context

Our region has been deeply affected by the events of 2019-2020. Australia's most extensive bush fires and COVID-19 came after months of severe drought and record-breaking temperatures across the region. In the Upper Murray, more than 380,000 hectares of land burned with 42 primary residences destroyed, 600 properties damaged and a significant loss of livestock, animals and habitat. The health and wellbeing of both individuals and communities has been severely altered by fire and its aftermath.

While COVID-19 was largely contained in our region, rural communities, given their higher rates of population ageing, ill health and poorer access to health services, face ongoing concerns. Economically, the lack of access to reliable internet impacted productivity, coupled with border closures and the loss of tourism reduced the economic viability of small business operators that are essential to small towns.

Our state government funding remains uncertain. By June 2021, it is anticipated that UHPCP will be discontinued, or in the process of transitioning its functions to another entity. During this period of change Upper Hume PCP will gather and collate organisational knowledge while continuing core activities and supporting member agencies and staff.

This uncertainty has meant our strategic plan, usually developed in collaboration with our partner agencies, instead builds on existing priorities from our 2017-2020 Strategic Plan through this transition period. We will continue to work closely with our partners and community to maximise the health and wellbeing of our community.

Vision

An integrated, collaborative primary health system delivering improved population health and wellbeing outcomes.

Principles

- Access and equity
- Strong leadership and governance
- Accountability and transparency
- Collaboration and partnership
- Evidence based
- Person centred
- Sustainability

Victoria's Primary Care Partnership (PCP) strategy (DHHS, 2017) brings together local health and human service providers who work together within voluntary alliances to strengthen cooperation and integration across sectors to maximise health and wellbeing outcomes, promote health equity and avoid unnecessary hospital presentations and admissions across their communities.

PCPs work in three key areas:

- Early intervention and integrated care (including integrated chronic disease management and service coordination)
- Consumer and community empowerment
- Prevention (including integrated health promotion).

Our Role

Honest Brokerage

We identify issues based on evidence and data and facilitate joint response for emerging issues, particularly around vulnerability and disadvantage.

Connection

We facilitate the participation of a broad range of stakeholders, including community, to support system improvement within a social determinants of health framework. We galvanise planned approaches across the service system, enabling evidence-based early intervention for those with, or at risk of, ill health.

Capacity Building

We assist our member organisations to take a social determinants and outcomes-focused approach through skills development and collaboration in co-production, community engagement, monitoring and evaluation, and collective impact.

Our Goals
